

Possible types to use

■ Luckiest Guy

WHEREAS DISREGARD AND CONTEMPT FOR HUMAN RIGHTS HAVE RESULTED

Indie Flower

whereas disregard and contempt for human rights have resulted colors I used in the poster

• 80179
48 12 8 8

#54207D
000 000 000

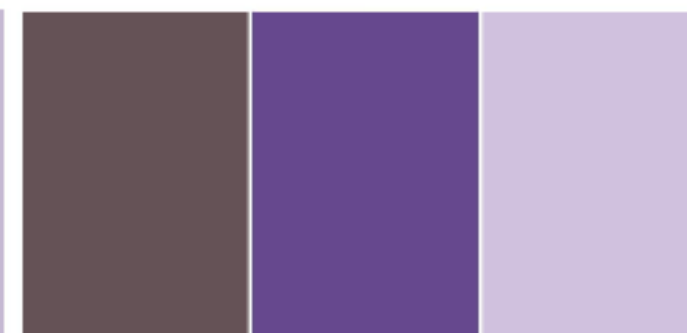

234342
AS 12.01.07

•667021

#542070

PC1663

•255326

#CG422C

RECLOSING

• 71051
84 4554

• 00000000

• INCHI

#Q04332

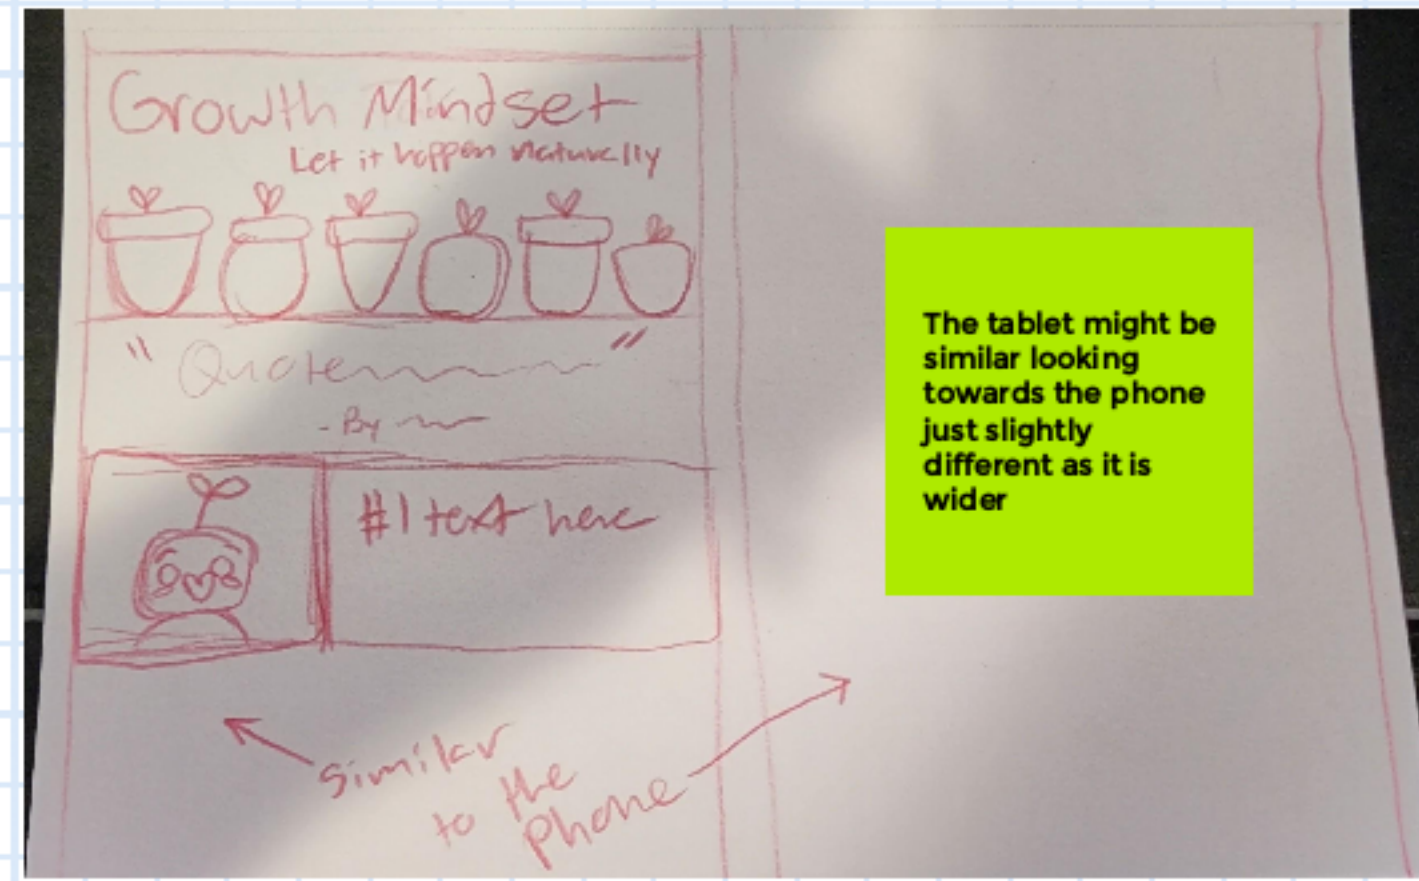

• 6626

• FIELD

Rough Idea for how the mobile might work

I want it to be like each plant is talking about parts of growth mindset

The tablet might be similar looking towards the phone just slightly different as it is wider

Desktop version is still similar but looks different

Sunflower grows until it hits quote two

Mobile/Tablet Process (Same Designs used in the end)

This was just seeing how it would look roughly added more things, changed colors around here

I want you to be able to go over the numbers and have like a rectangle around them to click on, to hop down to the part on the screen

I came up with the tab idea with the numbers to correlate to the top. I need to add the sub titles to them

GROWTH MINDSET

Let it happen naturally

"THE EXPERT IN ANYTHING WAS ONCE A BEGINNER."

-Helen Hayes

1

A growth mindset is a transformational approach to learning and development that empowers individuals to embrace challenges, persist through setbacks, and ultimately achieve higher levels of success. Rooted in the belief that abilities and intelligence can be developed through dedication and hard work, it contrasts with a fixed mindset, which assumes that abilities are innate and unchangeable.

2

Control in the growth mindset is the idea that failures and difficulties are not indicators of a person's limitations, but rather opportunities for learning and improvement. Instead of viewing setbacks as discouraging roadblocks, individuals with a growth mindset see them as stepping stones on the path to mastery. This outlook fosters resilience and tenacity, enabling individuals to persevere in the face of setbacks.

3

Embracing challenges is a cornerstone of the growth mindset. Rather than avoiding difficult tasks, individuals actively seek them out, recognizing that they provide the greatest potential for growth. They approach challenges with a sense of curiosity and a willingness to start, trusting that their abilities, knowledge, and skills will expand as they learn and grow.

"IT ALWAYS SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE UNTIL IT'S DONE."

-Nelson Mandela

4

Effort is highly valued in a growth mindset; it's understood that hard work, dedication, and effort are essential for the path to improvement. This mindset rejects the notion of innate talent as the primary determinant of success, instead attributing achievement to a combination of effort and strategy. This perspective empowers individuals to take ownership of their progress and strive for excellence.

5

Feedback is welcomed and appreciated in a growth mindset. Constructive criticism is seen as an invaluable source of information for refining skills and knowledge. It's not taken personally, but rather as a means to accelerate growth and development.

6

Furthermore, individuals with a growth mindset are inspired by the success of others. They see others' achievements not as threats, but as evidence of what is possible with dedication and hard work. They are eager to learn from and collaborate with those who have excelled in their field.

In essence, the growth mindset is a powerful philosophy that unlocks human potential by embracing challenges, valuing effort, seeking feedback, and celebrating the success of others. Individuals who embrace a mindset that empowers them to learn, grow, and improve through persistence and effort, ultimately reach the highest levels of achievement.

GROWTH MINDSET

Let it happen naturally

"THE EXPERT IN ANYTHING WAS ONCE A BEGINNER."

-Helen Hayes

1

A growth mindset is a transformational approach to learning and development that empowers individuals to embrace challenges, persist through setbacks, and ultimately achieve higher levels of success. Rooted in the belief that abilities and intelligence can be developed through dedication and hard work, it contrasts with a fixed mindset, which assumes that abilities are innate and unchangeable.

2

Control in the growth mindset is the idea that failures and difficulties are not indicators of a person's limitations, but rather opportunities for learning and improvement. Instead of viewing setbacks as discouraging roadblocks, individuals with a growth mindset see them as stepping stones on the path to mastery. This outlook fosters resilience and tenacity, enabling individuals to persevere in the face of setbacks.

3

Embracing challenges is a cornerstone of the growth mindset. Rather than avoiding difficult tasks, individuals actively seek them out, recognizing that they provide the greatest potential for growth. They approach challenges with a sense of curiosity and a willingness to start, trusting that their abilities, knowledge, and skills will expand as they learn and grow.

"IT ALWAYS SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE UNTIL IT'S DONE."

-Nelson Mandela

4

Effort is highly valued in a growth mindset; it's understood that hard work, dedication, and effort are essential for the path to improvement. This mindset rejects the notion of innate talent as the primary determinant of success, instead attributing achievement to a combination of effort and strategy. This perspective empowers individuals to take ownership of their progress and strive for excellence.

5

Feedback is welcomed and appreciated in a growth mindset. Constructive criticism is seen as an invaluable source of information for refining skills and knowledge. It's not taken personally, but rather as a means to accelerate growth and development.

6

Furthermore, individuals with a growth mindset are inspired by the success of others. They see others' achievements not as threats, but as evidence of what is possible with dedication and hard work. They are eager to learn from and collaborate with those who have excelled in their field.

In essence, the growth mindset is a powerful philosophy that unlocks human potential by embracing challenges, valuing effort, seeking feedback, and celebrating the success of others. Individuals who embrace a mindset that empowers them to learn, grow, and improve through persistence and effort, ultimately reach the highest levels of achievement.

MOBILE/TABLET STUFF HERE

GROWTH MINDSET

Let it happen naturally

"THE EXPERT IN ANYTHING WAS ONCE A BEGINNER."

-Helen Hayes

1

A growth mindset is a transformational approach to learning and development that empowers individuals to embrace challenges, persist through setbacks, and ultimately achieve higher levels of success. Rooted in the belief that abilities and intelligence can be developed through dedication and hard work, it contrasts with a fixed mindset, which assumes that abilities are innate and unchangeable.

2

Control in the growth mindset is the idea that failures and difficulties are not indicators of a person's limitations, but rather opportunities for learning and improvement. Instead of viewing setbacks as discouraging roadblocks, individuals with a growth mindset see them as stepping stones on the path to mastery. This outlook fosters resilience and tenacity, enabling individuals to persevere in the face of setbacks.

3

Embracing challenges is a cornerstone of the growth mindset. Rather than avoiding difficult tasks, individuals actively seek them out, recognizing that they provide the greatest potential for growth. They approach challenges with a sense of curiosity and a willingness to start, trusting that their abilities, knowledge, and skills will expand as they learn and grow.

"IT ALWAYS SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE UNTIL IT'S DONE."

-Nelson Mandela

I fixed the widows of quotes just didn't show it here

4

Effort is highly valued in a growth mindset; it's understood that hard work, dedication, and effort are essential for the path to improvement. This mindset rejects the notion of innate talent as the primary determinant of success, instead attributing achievement to a combination of effort and strategy. This perspective empowers individuals to take ownership of their progress and strive for excellence.

5

Feedback is welcomed and appreciated in a growth mindset. Constructive criticism is seen as an invaluable source of information for refining skills and knowledge. It's not taken personally, but rather as a means to accelerate growth and development.

6

Furthermore, individuals with a growth mindset are inspired by the success of others. They see others' achievements not as threats, but as evidence of what is possible with dedication and hard work. They are eager to learn from and collaborate with those who have excelled in their field.

In essence, the growth mindset is a powerful philosophy that unlocks human potential by embracing challenges, valuing effort, seeking feedback, and celebrating the success of others. Individuals who embrace a mindset that empowers them to learn, grow, and improve through persistence and effort, ultimately reach the highest levels of achievement.

GROWTH MINDSET

Let it happen naturally

"THE EXPERT IN ANYTHING WAS ONCE A BEGINNER."

-Helen Hayes

1

A growth mindset is a transformational approach to learning and development that empowers individuals to embrace challenges, persist through setbacks, and ultimately achieve higher levels of success. Rooted in the belief that abilities and intelligence can be developed through dedication and hard work, it contrasts with a fixed mindset, which assumes that abilities are innate and unchangeable.

2

Control in the growth mindset is the idea that failures and difficulties are not indicators of a person's limitations, but rather opportunities for learning and improvement. Instead of viewing setbacks as discouraging roadblocks, individuals with a growth mindset see them as stepping stones on the path to mastery. This outlook fosters resilience and tenacity, enabling individuals to persevere in the face of setbacks.

3

Embracing challenges is a cornerstone of the growth mindset. Rather than avoiding difficult tasks, individuals actively seek them out, recognizing that they provide the greatest potential for growth. They approach challenges with a sense of curiosity and a willingness to start, trusting that their abilities, knowledge, and skills will expand as they learn and grow.

"IT ALWAYS SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE UNTIL IT'S DONE."

-Nelson Mandela

4

Effort is highly valued in a growth mindset; it's understood that hard work, dedication, and effort are essential for the path to improvement. This mindset rejects the notion of innate talent as the primary determinant of success, instead attributing achievement to a combination of effort and strategy. This perspective empowers individuals to take ownership of their progress and strive for excellence.

5

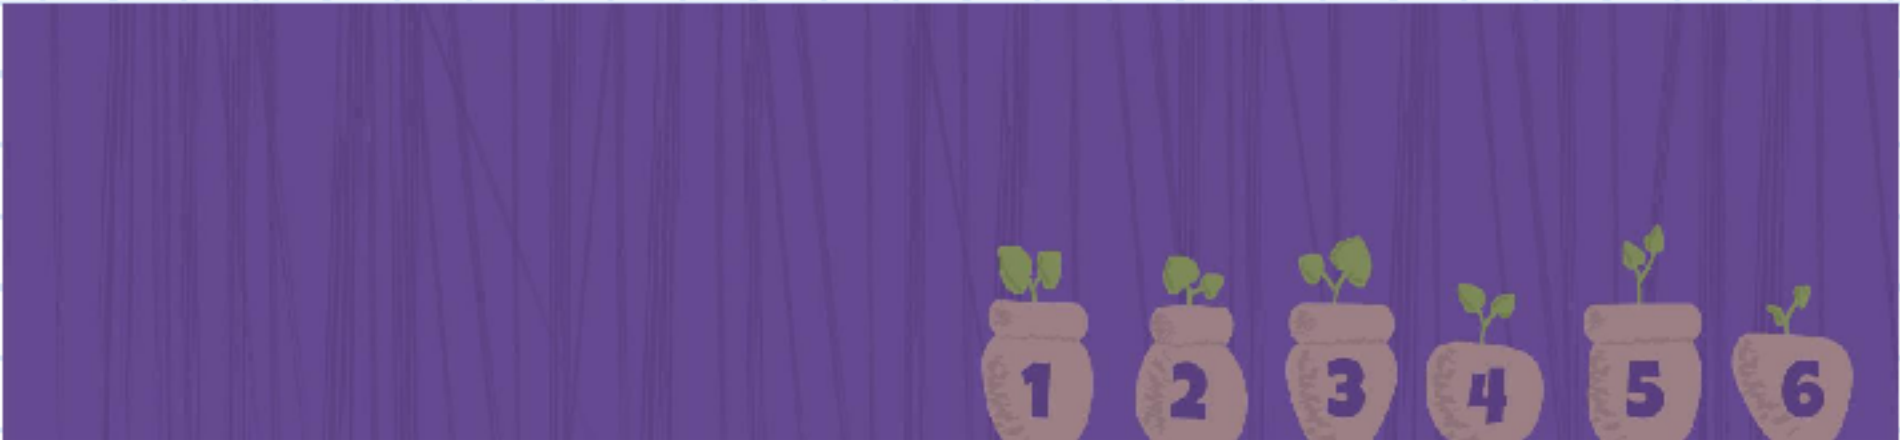

Feedback is welcomed and appreciated in a growth mindset. Constructive criticism is seen as an invaluable source of information for refining skills and knowledge. It's not taken personally, but rather as a means to accelerate growth and development.

6

Furthermore, individuals with a growth mindset are inspired by the success of others. They see others' achievements not as threats, but as evidence of what is possible with dedication and hard work. They are eager to learn from and collaborate with those who have excelled in their field.

In essence, the growth mindset is a powerful philosophy that unlocks human potential by embracing challenges, valuing effort, seeking feedback, and celebrating the success of others. Individuals who embrace a mindset that empowers them to learn, grow, and improve through persistence and effort, ultimately reach the highest levels of achievement.

PARAGRAPH BOXES

BACKGROUND COLOR

SMALL FONT YELLOW

#BDA2A7

RGB 189, 162, 167

#D0C2DC

RGB 206, 194, 220

#F1D165

RGB 241, 209, 101

QUOTE COLOR

TITLE COLOR

TAB BAR COLOR

#645357

RGB 100, 83, 87

#C1A332

RGB 191, 163, 50

#654A91

RGB 101, 74, 145

GET SUPPORT FROM OTHERS
WHEN YOU NEED IT

GROWTH MINDSET

Let it happen naturally

"THE EXPERT IN ANYTHING WAS ONCE A BEGINNER."

-Marianne Williamson

1

A growth mindset is a belief that abilities and intelligence can be developed through dedication and hard work. It contrasts with a fixed mindset, which assumes that abilities and intelligence are innate and unchangeable.

2

Central to the growth mindset is the idea that failures and difficulties are not indicators of a person's limitations, but rather opportunities for learning and improvement. Instead of viewing setbacks as discouraging roadblocks, individuals with a growth mindset see them as stepping stones on the path to mastery.

3

Embracing challenges is a cornerstone of the growth mindset. Rather than shying away from difficult tasks, individuals actively seek them out, recognizing that they provide the greatest potential for growth. They approach challenges with a sense of curiosity and a willingness to stretch their abilities, knowing that even if they don't immediately succeed, they are still expanding their skills and knowledge.

4

Effort is highly valued in a growth mindset. It's understood that hard work, dedication, and deliberate practice are the keys to improvement. This mindset rejects the notion of innate talent as the primary determinant of success, instead attributing achievement to a combination of effort and strategy. This perspective empowers individuals to take ownership of their progress and strive for excellence.

5

Feedback is welcomed and appreciated in a growth mindset. Constructive criticism is seen as an invaluable source of information for refining skills and knowledge. It's not taken personally, but rather as a means to accelerate growth and development.

6

Furthermore, individuals with a growth mindset are inspired by the success of others. They see others' achievements not as threats, but as evidence of what is possible with dedication and hard work. They are eager to learn from and collaborate with those who have excelled in their field.

"IT ALWAYS SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE UNTIL IT'S DONE."

-Nelson Mandela

GET SUPPORT FROM OTHERS WHEN YOU NEED IT

Embracing challenges is a cornerstone of the growth mindset. Rather than shying away from difficult tasks, individuals actively seek them out, recognizing that they provide the greatest potential for growth. They approach challenges with a sense of curiosity and a willingness to stretch their abilities, knowing that even if they don't immediately succeed, they are still expanding their skills and knowledge.

GROWTH MINDSET

Let it happen naturally

"THE EXPERT IN ANYTHING WAS ONCE A BEGINNER."

-Marianne Williamson

1

A growth mindset is a transformative approach to learning and development that empowers individuals to embrace challenges, persist through setbacks, and ultimately achieve higher levels of success. Rooted in the belief that abilities and intelligence can be developed through dedication and hard work, it contrasts with a fixed mindset, which assumes that abilities are innate and unchangeable.

2

Central to the growth mindset is the idea that failures and difficulties are not indicators of a person's limitations, but rather opportunities for learning and improvement. Instead of viewing setbacks as discouraging roadblocks, individuals with a growth mindset see them as stepping stones on the path to mastery. This outlook fosters resilience and tenacity, enabling individuals to persevere in the face of obstacles.

3

Embracing challenges is a cornerstone of the growth mindset. Rather than shying away from difficult tasks, individuals actively seek them out, recognizing that they provide the greatest potential for growth. They approach challenges with a sense of curiosity and a willingness to stretch their abilities, knowing that even if they don't immediately succeed, they are still expanding their skills and knowledge.

"IT ALWAYS SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE UNTIL IT'S DONE."

-Nelson Mandela

GET SUPPORT FROM OTHERS WHEN YOU NEED IT

In essence, the growth mindset is a powerful philosophy that unlocks human potential. By embracing challenges, valuing effort, seeking feedback, and celebrating the success of others, individuals can cultivate a mindset that propels them toward continuous learning, improvement, and ultimately, their highest levels of achievement.

4

Effort is highly valued in a growth mindset. It's understood that hard work, dedication, and deliberate practice are the keys to improvement. This mindset rejects the notion of innate talent as the primary determinant of success, instead attributing achievement to a combination of effort and strategy. This perspective empowers individuals to take ownership of their progress and strive for excellence.

5

Feedback is welcomed and appreciated in a growth mindset. Constructive criticism is seen as an invaluable source of information for refining skills and knowledge. It's not taken personally, but rather as a means to accelerate growth and development.

6

Furthermore, individuals with a growth mindset are inspired by the success of others. They see others' achievements not as threats, but as evidence of what is possible with dedication and hard work. They are eager to learn from and collaborate with those who have excelled in their field.

